Community Project Plans Needing U. S. Aid Must Be Rushed

There will be a meeting of the Nevada City Chamberf of Commerce this evening, called specially by President Fred F. Cassidy, to consider a communication from the State Chamber of Commerce, in which attention is called to the dead line, February 11, for submittal of all county, city and school district improvement plans, for which Federal aid may be asked. February 11 is next Monday, one week from today. There is no time to lose.

President Cassidy has communicated with all those who may have such plans and urges them to be present this evening. He has asked the school board, which has been maturing plans for the construction of a new high school gymnasium and class rooms, to be present. It is expected that the city council, which has an ambitious plan for the improvement of the municipal park, will also attend.

He proposes that a committee shall be appointed at once, to see that all the projects for which Federal aid might be asked, be gathered together and presented in good order to State P. W. A. Engineer A. D. Wilder.

The letter received from the State Chamber of Commerce, urging immediate action, follows:

"Acting upon the apparent certainty of passage of the Presiden'ts public works program, city, county and state officials, as well as officers of the school and other districts, will within a day or two receive forms and instructions for listing public works projects to be included in the President's new $4,800,000 reemployment program.

"State P. W. A. Engineer A. D. Wilder will announce February 11th as the deadline for submitting projects for Federal aid to create jobs and improvements throughout California. He is asking for a list of already planned projects to be commenced before January, 1936, and also for an inventory of all possible useful projects which might be considered for inclusion in California's application for Federal funds.

"While the actual plan of financing has not yet been announced from Washington, it is contemplated that provisions will differ considerably frim the previous public works allotments. It is understood that in the case of some projects the Federal Government may provide all or most of the funds, while in others, Federal aid may be limited to a percentage of the total cost.

"Political bodies are now being asked to submit all worthwhile and necessary improvements as a part of a statewide inventory of potential public works projects. California counties and municipalities apparently stand in a position to receive important Federal aid through the public works now being planned.

"Council members of the State Chamber of Commerce have an important responsibility in acquainting themselves with the program and procedure and in checking with their officials to see that worthwhile projects are being listed and submitted in connection with this inventory.

"The district managers of the State Chamber have been asked by Mr. Wilder to assist him in securing from the counties, cities and districts, within the limited time, all of the necessary information to guarantee fair consideration of all worthy projects. Each of the State Chamber offices in San Francisco, Los Angeles, Sacramento, Fresno, Stockton and Santa Rosa, has been supplied with a set of questionnaires and application forms and will assist local, political units in filing their information with the State P. W. A. Engneer."

SAN JUAN RIDGE LEAGUE STARTS CLEAN UP DRIVE

Since the organization of the San Juan Ridge Improvement League here last week the folks all along the Ridge have felt the urge and seem to have decided improvements can be made in many ways.

New fences are being constructed and old ones repaired and straightened up. Unsightly weeds and brush have been cut and burned; tin cans and trash that has accumulated for years is to be hauled away and hidden in deep holes and gulches and barnyards and front lawns are even coming in for their share of the new improvement spirit.

The men employed by the SERA have repaired the bridge that is part of the road to French Corral as well as other hmall bridges in this district. The CCC boys, now camped at Bridgeport, have been working at the Corral all week widening and improving the Owl Hill road that leads to the Slide mines and later connects with the old Ponta Rosa Trail. Huge boulders have been blasted out, sharp turns widened and scrapped and a culvert built to help carry off the rain water at the ford.

These nice warm sunny days are ideal to get out and dig post holes, trim trees and other odd jobs that makes a community appear neat and well cared for.

CALIF. AUTO ASSN. OPPOSES COUNTY ROAD TRANSFER

Proposed legislation taking all county roads into the State Highway System is opposed by the California State Automobile Association as "an unworkable and unnecessary experiment."

Holding that the practical limit of centralized state authority over financing and administering highway work has already been reached, the Board of Directors of the motorists organization through its executive committee today announced strong disapproval of the plan, which would transfer to the state an additional 65,000 miles of county roads and abolish all local control.

"The limit of centralization compatible with the best interests of the state and the counties was just about reached," the announcement declared, "when 6,700 miles of important county roads and through routes in cities were added to the State Highway System at the last session of the legislature. So far little more than strictly essential maintenance work has been done by the state on these newly added roads."

RADICAL DEPARTURE

Terming the proposed legislation a radical experiment which offers no assurance of greater efficiency or economy in the spending of money contributed by motorists for road purpses, the Association statement emphasized that the existing method has givein California one of the finest highway systems in the nation.

"The state now has under its jurisdictiton 13,624 miles of highways and 985 miles of through route streets in cities, embracing all important motor travel arteries in California," the statement continued. "There remain under the jurisdictiton of county boards of supervisors some 65,000 miles of roads which are f little more than local importance.

TAXES BELONG TO COUNTIES

"The share of gasoline tax and motor vehicle fee money which goes to the counties should not be considered as state aid to county roads. The money really belongs to the counties in the first instance, the state acting simply as a collection agency. Supervisors are responsible to the people of their county, who can proceed in various ways if they feel there is inefficiency or waste in the use of road funds. If the people of a county want roads of a higher standard than is possible with gasoline tax money, they are privileged to tax themselves for that purpose. That is the business of the people of the county and not of the state as a whole.

"The proposed legislation would eliminate all refunds to the counties and vest in the California Highway Commission the allocaton of some $44,000,000 per year.

"Reference has been made to political patronage of supervisors. It would appear that wherever officials have the allocating and spending of money there could always be political patronage."

BREED OPPOSED

Arthur H. Breed, president of the Automobile Association and former state senator, recognized as an authority on highway legislation, said:

"California today has the finest system of highways of any state and a plan of financing and method of administration which are generally regarded as models of their kind. The Automobile Association feels that, for the present at least, there should be no tinkering with this successful mechanism. We should not experiment with something new when what we have is working out so well. There are highway functions which, by their nature, should be carried on by the state, but there are also road problems of such a peculiarly local nature that they should be handled by local authorities."

SIERRA COUNTY DISTRICT ATTORNEY

DOUBT CAST ON AD VALOREM TAX

BY RALPH H. TAYLOR

California lawmakers, if they reject major tax proposals of Governor Merriam's message and deadlock on substitute revenue measures, may confront new and wholly unexpected difficulties.

They can't "go down the fire-escape"!

Such, at any rate, is the consensus of opinion of many attorneys who have considered the state's financial dilemma—and the dilemma of the lawmakers.

The legislative fire-escape in the event of a hopeless deadlock on revenue proposals is a time-worn provision empowering the State Board of Control and the State Board of Equalization to levy an ad valorem, or direct state property tax to meet any deficiency in state revenues.

Such a tax could be made without direct legislative sanction. In other words, if legislative confusion became too great, the lawmakers could always go home, leaving the state administration with the unwelcome and unhappy task of imposing a state property tax.

But the legislative fire-escape, never used before because it was never needed, has fallen into disrepair, according to inquisitive attorneys, and it is exceedingly doubtful whether it offers any escape at all in the present unprecedented period of tax extremity.

LEGALLY DOUBTFUL

The condition of the traditional means of escape from legislative frustration—more important now than ever before, due to the imperative need of new revenues, and the violently vocal opposition of every group scheduled for additional taxation—is, at the least, legally doubtful.

There is, to be sure, a provision in the Political Code—Section 3713—setting forth that the Board of Control and the Board of Equalization may levy an ad valorem tax in the event of a serious deficiency in state revenues to meet state expenditures. But this provision states that such a tax shall be levied in accordance with Subdivision "E" of Section 14 of Article 13 of the State Constitution. And Subdivision "E" of Sectiton 14 of Article 13 was repealed by the voters of California when they adopted the Riley-Stewart Tax Relief Plan more than a year and a half ago!

The legal question involved is whether a statute, which refers back to a constitutional provision, is valid when the constitutional provision has been repealed. And if it is not valid, as many attorneys contend, California lawmakers would be forced to pass a new statute if they wished to fall back on the ad valorem tax as a way out of the financial wilderness.

LAWMAKERS SHY

If the major taxation proposals in Governor Merriam's program are rejected, there are only two possible alternatives, in the judgment of a majority of the state's financial officers. One is the ad valorem tax, which would impose a state tax on every farm and home and all common property in the state. Few lawmakers, looking to re-election, would care to vote for such a tax. And the second alternative is a gross transactions tax, which involves a fundamental change in the state's tax structure.

Whether California legislators can act intelligently on a gross transactions tax—with any sureness of the revenues to be derived from any stipulated rate, or of the effect of such a tax on California business and industry—is doubtful. One bill is pending, calling for such a tax, and another measure is pending calling for an investigation into its possibilities.

From the standpont of the farmer and common property taxpayers as a whole, it is at least reassuring that the lawmakers will be forced to go on record—in a direct roll-call—if they intend to use a state property tax as a major source of revenue.

The ambiguities and conflicts in the law, at least in this instance, will serve a good purpose. If the property owner is to be forced to shoulder a new burden of taxation, he is entitled to know the reasons—and the lawmakers who sanctioned it.

Supervisors Plan Court House Annex

The Board of Supervisors today, meeting in monthly session, considered plans for building a $33,000 annex to the county court house. The annex, as proposed, would fill in the corner alongside the jail on the eastern side and projecting back to Washington street. This proposed annex would extend upward three stories to the roof level of the present building.

The supervisors would submit this project to the P. W. A. engineer in San Francisco along with a project, estitmated to cost $12,000, for building an addition to the county hospital. This addition, to give more room to the women's department, has been contemplated for sometime.

The preliminary estimates of the two projects must be in the hands of State P. W. A. Engineer A. D. Wilder by February 11. Supervisor Cary Arbogast will make a report on this subject at the special meeting of the Nevada City Chamber of Commerce this evening.

MAGAZINE PRINTS MRS. CONNER'S POEM

In the November-December issue of the California Highway and Public Works magazine, the poem "Opening of the Highway," by Mrs. A. Merriam Conner, of Nevada City, was published and credit given to the Nevada City Nugget.

The beautiful poem has been receiving much praise and this city is proud to know that its author resides here.

STORK AND FIRE DEPT. IN TWO CLOSE RACES

Honors are almost even between the stork and the fire department. On Friday morning bright and early, the sirens blew and out flashed the firemen to put out a fire caused by an overheated flue in the residence of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Cartoscelli on upper Main street. Mrs. Cartoscelli, an expectant mother, had called Dr. B. W. Hummelt, a few minutes prior to the fire. Dr. Hummelt attended to her removal to the home of parents on the highway south of Nevada City. The fire destroyed the roof and caused damage of about $200.

Then again, the fire department was called out Saturday morning by a chimney blaze in the roof of the residence of Charles Marsh Brown. On thih occasion the fire department beat Dr. Hummelt by a bare 20 minutes. Shortly after the doctor's arrival Mrs. Brown became the mother of a handsome 7½ pound son. Bets are now being placed on the winner when the next fire alarm sounds.

ARMORY HALL

The Nevada City Fire Department is receiving the congratulations of many citizens who appreciate the enterprise shown by this organization in purchasing Armory Hall and dedicating it to community uses.

A little more than a year ago the firemen purchased the hall for $3500. They made a cash payment at the time. They have in the short time since, including the first down payment, cleared $1,700 from the debt which they assumed. With the proceeds of the last New Year masquerade ball, amounting to $759 net, they now propose to make another payment which will cut another big slice from the debt. In a very short time Armory hall will be clear of debt.

In devoting the hall to community gatherings, dances, rallies, athletic events, flower shows and the great variety of occasions in which it can serve the people of Nevada City, the Fire Department proves itself not only an organization of protecttion, safeguarding our citizens from the ever present hazard of fire, but also an organization for the city's regeneration and upbuilding.

Of course, the great body of citizens does recognize and appreciate the enterprise and public spirited action of their firemen. Cash and merchandise contributions are made each year by merchants, business and professional men, and by private individuals for the common purpose of advancing community interests under the firemen's leadership. It is this leadership for which Nevada City residents feel profoundly grateful.

When the time comes that the firemen have entirely freed Armory hall from debt, they have promised a series of improvements in the historic building that will bring in nearer to modern standards.

LIMITATIONS

I'll never be a captain bold,
A pilot or a mate,
I'll never issue loud commands
Upon the ship of state;
I can't assume the weighty tasks
Performed by super he-men,
But I may do my level best
Among the able seamen.

I cannot lead the orchestra,
Or scrape a violin,
My work with saxaphone or flute
Would rate as deadly sin;
I cannot sing as many do,
In vibrant tones sonorous,
But I could warble modestly
And help to swell the chorus.

I cannot build a grand facade,
A temple or a castle,
I cannot overcome the strong,
Or with the mighty wrestle;
I'll never speak in stentor tones,
Or win great recompenses,
But I could guard a little gate
And mend the little fences.

Christian Andersen

On Lake Titicaca in the Andes mountains 12,500 feet above sea level, there is a steamship line which has been in operation since 1870. The two first steamers, the Yaravi and the Yapari, were built in the British Isles in 1862, given their tests, then unassembled and shipped to Mollendo. There they were packed on muleback to Lake Titicaca and again assembled and finally put into service in 1872. Since then three more vessels have been put into service on Lake Titicaca, viz, The Coya, 1890 cost 33,000 pounds sterling, the Inca 1907 40,000 pounds sterling, the Ollanta 1931, length 265 feet, beam 35 feet, carries 66 first class passengers and 20 second class. This last vessel cost 80,000 pounds. All the vessels named were built and assembled in the British Isles then tested, taken apart and shipped to South America, again assembled and put into service in Lake Titicaca to ply 100 miles between Puno, Peru and Guaquil, Bolivia. They are operated by a Peruvian, an English corporation.

The Llama, the South American beast of burden, makes no noise nor has it found any way to defend itself except by blowing a mucus from it's nostrils. This has a very pungent, unpleasant odor and generally deters any one from approaching the animal during one of it's huffs.

Did I remenisce today when we had "cawn" fritters, bacon and honey, just like we had down on the old mortgage covered farm.

Soon, or anyway sometime, I am going to Europe. One steamship outfit advertises a round trip fare of $110 and you pay only $24.00 down and $9.00 per month.

Famous people from whom I have letters, Knute Rockne, Joe Penner, Walt Disney, Louis M. H. Howe, Secretary to President Roosevelt, and Howard Heinz.

Coasting down Boulder street in their Christmas wagon, brought a severe reprimand to the three youngsters by their mother, I had my back to them when this was going on. Although I can make up a fair line of excuses myself, it is easy to see that oldsters like me are back numbers in this respect.

I am a nautral setup for saving the sayings of contemporary great men. In that respect I presume that there is a bit of selfishness involved. Perhaps I am hoping that some of the stardust may be brushed off their mantle and fall on me.

From Our Correspondents

FRENCH CORRAL

BY MRS. KATE M. SULLIVAN

I am writing from my bed in the Nevada City Sanitarium—that haven of comfort, peace, help and rest! Paradoxitally speaking, it is a joy to be sick and cared for by these wonderful nurses.

Regretted not getting my chirp of enthusiasm in Thursday's issue of the Nugget. All were very much enthused over the organization of the North San Juan Improvement League and sincerely hope it may be the means of bringing a happy future to this beloved section of our our own Nevada county.

Mrs. Al Jaynes, who recently underwent a serious operation at Dr. Landis' hospital, returned to her home near Pine Grove last week.

Columbia Parlor, No. 70, N. D. G. W., held a meeting Friday afternoon January 22.

Rev. P. O.Reilly held services in the Birchville church on Sunday, January 24.

Mrs. K. Sullivan was taken to the Nevada City Sanitarium in the Holmes Funeral Home ambulance on Wednesday evening. "Aunt Kate" has been ailing for several weeks and her trouble suddenly developed into what seemed to be a serious case of influenza. Happily she is improving and with her fortitude for weathering such storms, we can expect to see her about soon.

Quartz and Placer location blanks for sale at Nugget Office.

FRENCH CORRAL

By KATHERINE BRAITHWAITE

FRENCH CORRAL, Feb. 4.—Mr. and Mrs. Lloyd Dudley, of Nevada City, spent the week end with Mrs. Dudley's parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Moulton.

Mr. and Mrs. Jack Culver's favorite cow Nellie, presented them with a brand new calf which they have named Jennie.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Glenn of Point Defiance have moved to French Corral to make their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Mike Baker, of Sacramento, visited in this district Sunday.

Earl Bowes, of Sweetland, is visiting at the Corral House for the next ten days.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Robertson and son Clyde, of Yuba City, are now residing in the Clyde Bishop home on Main street.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Tennis, of Berkelely have located permanently in French Corral.

Mrs. Martha Kirkwood is seriously ill with stomach trouble and her son Roy Kirkwood, of Alleghany, will remain with her until she improves.

The San Juan Improvement League will give a dance in the French Corral school house, February 8. A three piece orchestra will provide the music and the admission will be 75 cents which includes refreshments. If this dance is successful there will be others given at Birchville and North San Juan.

In order to increase the attendance in the Birchville school which lacks the required quota of attendance, the Welfare Committee of the San Juan Ridge League have been brought in touch with an Indian family of six children who are to reside in the district for the balance of the term.

NEVADA THEATRE SHOWS "GIRL OF LIMBERLOST" AND "MADAME DU BARRY"

Gene Stratton-Porter's famous novel of the Indiana swamplands "A Girl of the Limberlost," will be the current attraction at the Nevada Theatre tonight and Tuesday, with the charming demure Marian Marsh in the title role.

This Monogram screen version of the book which has been read by millions, as directed by Christy Cabanne follows very closely the lives of the Comstocks and Sintons as depicted by Miss Porter in her classic.

The story deals with the struggles of Elnora Comstock to gain an education. Her strongest obstacle is the hatred of her mother who blames her for the death of her husband in the swamp adjoining their home.

Growing up in an atmosphere of hatred, there is one bright spot in her life, the love of "Uncle" Wesley and "Aunt Margaret Sinton, their neighbors. The Sintons aid her in her efforts to gain an education by helping her with her moth collection which she sells for clothes and the money for tuition.

" MADAME DU BERRY"

"Madame Du Barry," the Warner Bros. productiton depicting the intimate life and loves of the famous beauty who ruled the court f King Louis, XV, comes to the Nevada Theatre Wednesday and Thursday with Dolores Del Rio in the stellar role.

The picture, while billed as a comedy drama, with the emphasis on the comedy, also is a mammoth spectacle with its gorgeous reproductions of the court, the palace at Versailles, the famous Colonnade Gardens, where the grand ladies and resplendent courtiers disported themselves in gaiety and luxury, while the people starved.

Nor is the picture without its dramatic moments when Du Barry fights intrigue with intrigue, usually outwitting her enemies, who would gladly thrust a dagger through her beautiful back. Yet even in these mire intense sequences, the irrepressible Du Barry usually manages to end them withm a laugh—at the expense of the enemy.
